WCH Tokyo 25 launches limited view seats ahead of next month's championships

With just under a month to go, the World Athletics Championships Tokyo 25 (WCH Tokyo 25) is ready to ignite the Japan National Stadium this September!

From 19:00 JST on Friday 22 August, fans will have another chance to grab their spot at some of the most sought-after sessions of the championships – including the thrilling men's and women's 100m finals – with a release of Limited view seats going on sale.

Limited view seating

Sales of Limited View Seats will open at 19:00 JST on Friday 22 August via the official ticketing website. This release covers five of the most sought-after sessions, all with only a handful of seats remaining:

- Day 1 (Saturday 13 September) Evening Session
- Day 2 (Sunday 14 September) Evening Session
- Day 7 (Friday 19 September) Evening Session
- Day 8 (Saturday 20 September) Evening Session
- Day 9 (Sunday 21 September) Evening Session

Additional Limited View Seats for other sessions may be released at a later date depending on ticket availability.

About Limited View Seating

Due to the stadium's structural layout and operational requirements during the championships, some seats may have a partially restricted view of the competition field or event presentations. These seats are clearly marked and sold as Limited view seats.

Although sightlines may be partially restricted, this will not significantly affect a ticketholder's ability to follow the action, and they will still be able to enjoy the full atmosphere and excitement of the Championships. Limited view seats are sold at standard prices.

By purchasing these seats, spectators acknowledge and accept that visibility may be partially restricted. Please note that changes or refunds – including for reasons relating to restricted views – cannot be accommodated. Limited view seats are available exclusively via the official ticketing website and will not be sold through the Pia or TBS ticketing platforms.
